

Anderson's Wear-Easy Shoe

is a shoe made especially for farm use and that will wear "as easy as an old shoe" right from the start. A shoe in which there is not a peg or nail or thread to touch the bottom of the foot. A shoe that is almost as soft and flexible as a lady's hand turned. A shoe with a pure white oak innersole that is cooling to the bottom of the foot; all other every day shoes are made with cheap acid tanned red leather innersoles that burn, scald and blister the feet so badly in hot weather. A shoe that will give more comfort for general farm use than any shoe that has ever been gotten up.

GOEBEL WINS.

Gets 32 Majority Over Hardin In The Windup.

Strong Ticket Named, Nearly All
Of Them Young Men—
Beckham For Lieut.
Governor.

Louisville, Ky., June 29.—At 10:45 o'clock Tuesday night the closest and most exciting contest for a gubernatorial nomination in Kentucky was ended in the victory of the Goebel men. Up to the very finish of the final ballot the result was in apparent uncertainty and the friends of Hardin were waging a vigorous contest. Not until the 16 votes of Union county were cast for Goebel did the Hardin men surrender hope and come to the conviction that Goebel had out-managed them.

It was a tremendous victory for the brilliant young Kenton county leader, and coming at the end of a struggle wholly unprecedented, it fairly set the friends of Goebel wild with delight.

A Great Ovation.

Such an ovation as he received after the final vote has not often been seen in any convention, and a feature of it, which was especially gratifying to his friends, was that the managers of the opposing candidates, who for seven days, had fought to gain some advantage against his quiet wit, wonderful powers of organization and masterly generalship, were among the first to grasp his hand and promise him fealty. And when Joe Blackburn led him to the front of the stage, the Dean of the Kentucky Democracy standing side by side with the bravest of its young leaders, there was a wild storm of cheering, which lasted until lung power was exhausted. The day in the convention was full of excitement and apparent uncertainty, but never once was Goebel himself apprehensive as to the result.

Knew His Power.

He held the key to the situation and knew it. The Stone and Hardin men knew it as well, and they made the effort to save their men by a unique plan. Both candidates were brought upon the stage to speak in support of a resolution adjourning the convention and declaring for the election of a new set of delegates. That was the serious and perhaps fatal mistake.

The movement to adjourn the convention furnished exactly the opening Goebel needed. It went against the humor of the delegates who for five days, with a Sunday intervening, had fought and paid board bills for their favorites.

First Aggressive Move.

Then came the first aggressive step of Goebel. His people offered a resolution to drop the lowest man. It was carried by the same sentiment that condemned the movement to adjourn and it gave strength to the man who was fighting to face the issue. Then came the enforced retirement of Stone, the gallant old soldier from Lyon county, and a single-handed contest between Goebel and Hardin. Through all the exciting moments of the final vote Goebel was still confident, with the consummate skill and fearless aggressiveness which made him a national leader of the party in Frankfort; he had laid his plans, and knew that they could not fail. The fight he made challenged the admiration of his bitterest opponents, and his hard-won victory made doubly sincere the congratulations of his friends.

The Final Ballot.

The official result of the final (twentieth-sixth) ballot was as follows:

BICYCLING IN GREECE.A Visit to Classic Scenes and Cities*a-where.

The notion which foreigners have of the roads of Greece, that they are bad compared with those of other countries, is an error. A bicycle journey through Italy and Sicily disabused me of that notion. The worst road that I ever tried was that between Caserta and Naples, and the next worse was that leading to Rome from the north. There are, of course, some bad roads in Greece; but even Sicily, to say nothing of worse roads in Italy, cured me of complaining against Greece. For a pure pleasure ride, the road between Tripolitza and Sparta would be hard to match anywhere in the world. It is in capital condition, and, on account of its gentle grade, involves very little walking. Six hours suffice for the journey in either direction, and the view either way is superb. The ride through Aetolia and Acarnania, regions considered half civilized in the classical period of Greek history, but always fine in natural beauty, with big lakes and rivers that "move in majesty" (a rare thing in Greece), hedged in by high mountains, is perhaps the best in Greece. One rides from the shore of the Corinthian gulf, opposite Patras, to Arita (Ambracia), in two days, with a comfortable night at Agrinon, passing the historic Missolonghi and visiting the ruins of Calydon, Pleuron (Endiadae), Stratos, Limnaea, and Amphidochia Argos; while to the right and left are other ruins which invite one to make detours if one is not in a hurry. And one ought not to omit the recently excavated Thermon, the ancient capitol of Aetolia, even if it does cost an extra day. The long-known and impressive ruins of Oenanda, the chief city in Acarnania, also invite one to linger a whole day instead of spending a few hours in passing.

The first five cities of ancient Greece in renown and interest were Athens, Sparta, Argos, Thebes and Corinth. One can ride from Athens to Thebes or Corinth and back in a single day; he can also easily reach Argos from Athens in a day, and this leaves a rather long day's work for reaching Sparta. Any good bicyclist would find it no great matter to leave Thebes and pay his respects to Athens on the first day, visit Corinth and Argos on the next day, and sleep comfortably at Sparta the next night. — Paris Daily Messenger.

COLDS IN WARM CLIMATES.Suggestion as to How to Prevent Taking Them.

Colds and allied diseases are so easily induced in a hot climate, which keeps the pores of the skin constantly open, that few people escape being afflicted for many weeks at a time by some form of these distressing attacks; and, once having contracted cold in the head, sore throat or inflamed lungs, it is difficult to assuage the trouble. The hot, moist air in sunshine, changing to a sultry chilliness under a heavy shower, or to positive darkness during the clear nights, constantly adds to the inflammation of the membranes unless the utmost caution is exercised. A susceptible person or a victim to colds must take prompt measures to alleviate the simple trouble, or it may be followed by pneumonia, or by the far worse and more inviolable disease, consumption. Woolen abdominal bandages are advocated as a means of reducing the danger of rapid changes in the surface temperature of the body, and are undoubtedly worthy of consideration. The writer, however, prefers to dress with a fair degree of warmth, generally wearing thin cotton underclothes, protected by light woolen overclothes. While in this way one may become overheated, the cooling-off process is not nearly so dangerous with a complete covering of non-conducting woolen materials as it is with the thin cotton and linen clothes affected by the native population. It is a good plan always to put on heavier clothes at night. If you feel the slightest chilliness, exercise, or put on a light overcoat. By following these suggestions the grave afflictions of local congestion may be largely prevented.—Harper's Weekly.

EDUCATION AND CRIME.Army of Crime Drawn Mainly from the Unlettered.

It is satisfactory to observe that figures lend no support to the pessimistic conclusion which we sometimes see maintained that education does not diminish crime, and even tends to increase some forms of it. The recruits of the army of crime seem to be drawn mainly from the uneducated. Of 148,962 convicted prisoners, only 3,324 were returned as able to read and write well, and even 72 as of superior education. On the other hand, 30,371 could neither read nor write, and 115,037 could only read, or could read and write imperfectly. Evidently there is no need to give up our faith in education as an agency for diminishing crime.

Nothing is plainer from statistics than the fact that the ranks of the habitual criminals are being abundantly recruited by young men. This class is not the product of past causes, merely continuing in the present as a survival of conditions no longer existing. It is still being produced freely. An extremely large proportion of the burglaries, house-breakings and the like are the work of offenders under 21. No less than 34 per cent. of the persons convicted for these offenses in 1897 were between 16 and 21. It is clear, therefore, that young men take to professional crime very readily, in spite of all deterrent influences. This question was fully dealt with in the introduction to the 1893 statistics. A table was there given showing the proportion of criminals at each age to the general population of the same age. This proportion was found to be highest between 16 and 21, next highest between 12 and 16 and to fall off steadily as life advances. The proportion seems somewhat lower for 1897, but is still very high. This great prevalence of juvenile crime is a very discouraging feature. It is evident that powerful and active forces of social corruption must be at work in the country to produce so many youthful criminals.

An unwholesome phenomenon is a distinct increase in burglary and house-breaking. The annual average of convictions has risen from 1,465 in 1853-7 to 1,684 in 1893-5, and there has been a much greater increase in the number of crimes of this class reported to the police. As these crimes are precisely those which are usually committed by the professional offender, the increase is serious enough on any showing. The fact that the number of professional burglars evidently not diminishing, and the further fact that the number of burglaries, etc., reported to the police more and more outstrips the number of trials and convictions for these offenses are both highly disquieting.—London Law Magazine.

FIREPROOF MORTAR.

Composition of Serpentine Rock Withstands Fire and Water.

Many mixtures have been tried by builders and architects with a view of producing mortars which will really possess fire-resisting properties, and nothing satisfactory up to the present has been discovered, but now some one has discovered that serpentinite rock, which contains a large amount of asbestos, possesses very high fire-resisting properties. This rock when powdered and mixed with good lime, etc., can be heated up to 1,100 degrees Fahrenheit without experiencing any damage whatever. One of the great dangers when a building is on fire is that the mortar after being heated cracks or disintegrates when water from the firemen's hose is thrown upon it. The new material, however, it is claimed, can be heated to 1,100 degrees Fahrenheit and immediately plunged into water without cracking. Another great advantage possessed by this new material is its high degree of elasticity. The advantage of this will be readily appreciated by architects and others who are constantly called upon to advise with regard to sinking or settling buildings. As soon as a building begins to settle ordinary mortar begins to crack, but this new mortar is so elastic that it does not crack, but simply yields to the strain. But perhaps one of the most remarkable properties of all is the ease with which nails can be hammered into joints made with the new mortar without damaging it in the slightest degree. It flows readily from the trowel and can be easily pointed up; it will also receive decorations of various kinds, and can be painted either with oil or water colors.—Cecil (Md.) Democrat.

NEW RAILROAD.

To be Built From Dixon to a Point on the I. C. Between Sturgis and Blackford.

Dixon, June 20.—Irving H. Wheatcroft, on the Southern Construction Co., and C. A. Doris and R. L. Jackson, chairman and secretary of the citizens' committee on the part of the people this morning signed an article of agreement between the said Construction Co., and the people of Dixon, Lismann and Clay, providing for the construction of a line of railway from this place, by way of Lismann and Clay, to a point the I. C. R. R. The line is to intersect the I. C. not further north than Sturgis and not further south than Blackford. The company bind themselves to begin the construction within ninety days from the date of the contract and to complete it within six months thereafter. The citizens along the line have subscribed for thirty thousand dollars of first mortgage 20-year gold bonds bearing interest of 6 per cent., payable semi-annually, and have given the right-of-way.

This line runs through the best grain and tobacco portion of Webster county and through one of the best coal fields in Kentucky. It means much for the development of the natural resources of the county and furnishes a splendid opportunity for the investment of foreign capital.—Madisonville Mail.

Weekly Crop Bulletin.

The United States Weather and Crop Bureau gives the following summary of weather and crop condition in Kentucky for the week ending June 20, 1899:

The first part of the week was warm with frequent showers, but the latter part cool and dry. The rains were rather unevenly distributed—some sections receiving but little, while in other localities farm work was delayed considerably by rain.

In most counties early wheat was being harvested during the latter part of the week and good progress was made. The yield of wheat will be very light in many localities—less than was expected—but the quality is good. Oats are doing fairly well, but are quite backward yet. Corn is generally doing very well; some early fields already laid by.

Tobacco setting was generally completed during the early part of the week, and where not injured by the grasshoppers, is doing very well. The injury from grasshoppers has become very serious in some localities, some fields having been abandoned entirely on this account.

Gardens are doing very well and vegetables of excellent quality are coming into the markets. Irish and sweet potatoes are doing very well.

Early Irish potatoes are ready for the table in some localities and of excellent quality. Fruit is not very satisfactory. There was a good crop of strawberries, but they are now about over; and other fruits are rather scarce. Apples and pears are falling badly. Meadows and pastures are doing very well.

"Mr. Feland passed one of the best mental examinations this year.

Of the candidates who took the examination with him last week he attained the highest average, 98.75 per cent. Mr. Feland, ranking first on the list, will skip the grade of Second Lieutenant and be appointed First Lieutenant, one vacancy now existing in that grade."

READING IN BED.

Not Bad if Neither Too Heavy Nor Too Stimulating.

Reading in bed used to be objected to in the old days on the score of danger and one of the first injunctions of a hostess to her guest was in reference to that prevalent but disquieting practice. But in these days, when electric light has removed the risk of fire, the question is one solely of its benefit or harm to the prospective sleeper. The Medical Press and Circular is of the opinion that a short course of some standard author may act as a composing sedative, but books which contain extremes of wit, melodrama, comedy, tragedy or philosophy should be avoided. Like a good supper, the reading should be neither too heavy nor too stimulating. On the other hand, most physicians are of the opinion that bed should be kept as much as possible for sleep. A habit of reading before putting out the light and closing one's eyes is apt to grow and become a tyranny, and if like drugs, the more you indulge in it, the longer has the reading to be to have the desired effect. It must be admitted, however, that the habit, to all but those fortunate beings who are asleep the moment their heads touch the pillow, is very seductive, and that a good many people's most serious reading is done at that time.—London Telegraph.

Those who do not like Goebel can vote for the platform. It is the best party platform ever adopted in Kentucky.

The tin horn politicians who figured in the Louisville Convention will hear more about their horns in the future.

The Courier-Journal and Times have announced their intention to support the Democratic ticket this year. The Dispatch shows signs of bolting, but it may feel better after its meal of crow.

Logan Eland finally passed the physical examination and was appointed first lieutenant in the marine service at a salary of $1900 a year and $40 a month when on shore for quarters. His friends here are proud of his success.

Goebel's nomination was brought about in a great measure by the mistakes of his opponents. The first mistake was the position taken by Chairman Johnston after Redwine had been elected Chairman by 570 votes. He reopened contest cases, invited others and held "magistrate's court" on the stage for seven hours, finally scaling Redwine's majority of 27 votes down to 3½ votes. But for the determined attitude of the party leaders, the counting out of Redwine would have been completed. As it was, the Chairman changed his tactics at the last moment and announced the figures electing the Goebel-Stone chairman. After assisting Goebel to organize the convention, Capt. Stone became suspicious of Goebel and formed an alliance with Hardin step resented by many of his most ardent supporters. Prior to this, however, came the Hardin indignation meeting at Beck's Hall, over the delar of the credentials committee which worked day and night for 48 hours. This foolish step made many votes for Goebel. Then came the disorder in the convention, culminating in a disgraceful attempt of the Hardins met Monday to break up the convention with tin horns, toy whistles, etc. The Hardin and Stone leaders, now operating together, joined in this tumult, every hour of which added to Goebel's following. Finally the greatest mistake of all was committed by the "new combine," when both Capt. Stone and Gen. Hardin appeared in person and advocated the sine die adjournment of the convention. This blunder proved fatal. All of the candidates for minor offices united with Goebel's forces in voting it down and followed this up at once by adopting a dropping rule. Goebel had 420 votes at his disposal and he easily secured 140 more by combinations with other candidates, who were glad to get on the winning side. Goebel's forces were managed throughout with a master hand. Only one mistake was made and that prevented his nomination on the first ballot. The Louisville vote was not divided with Stone on the first ballot as had been promised, but was all cast for Goebel. The Louisville delegates thought a stampede had come and acted upon the impulse of the moment. This angered Stone's friends, who tried to nominate Hardin then and there but failed. Goebel's friends quickly threw Daviess county to Stone to offset the Louisville defection. Although the Louisville vote was divided on every subsequent ballot, Capt. Stone became distrustful and wound up by making a combination with Hardin that lasted until the end came.

Burned With Chemicals.

Eugene Armistead is home from Knoxville suffering from some severe burns on his hands that will disqualify him for work for several weeks. He received the burns while compounding drugs for his employer.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, proved it to be a general disease. Science now proves it to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cuseney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It takes internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous membranes of the system. They offer one hundred dollars in case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. The Ticket Completed.

With the star attraction off the boards, the convention did not draw so well Wednesday morning. Everybody seemed anxious to get through with business, and this was shown by the unanimous adoption of a resolution providing that after the second ballot for minor offices the hindmost candidate be dropped, and that nominating speeches be limited to two minutes. Nominating speeches were then begun.

For Lieutenant Governor, J. C. W. Beckham, of Nelson; Wm. P. Thorne, of Henry; Maj. Thomas H. Hays, of Louisville; Judge Edward Kelly and J. M. Kendall were placed in nomination.

The first ballot resulted: Beckham, 364; Thorne, 268; Kelly, 226; Hays, 201; Kendall, 30.

The dropping resolution was amended so as to take effect after the first ballot for each minor office, instead of the second. Maj. Hays withdrew, and a second ballot for Lieutenant Governor was taken. Beckham had a slight advantage when the roll call was finished, and changes to him of the votes of several counties soon gave him enough votes for a nomination. Then Kelly and Thorne in turn withdrew, and the nomination was made unanimous.

For Attorney General, Judge Robert J. Breckinridge, of Boyle; Judge James A. Scott, of Franklin; John S. Smith and N. B. Hays were presented. The first ballot resulted as follows: Breckinridge, 302; Scott, 267; Hays, 307; Smith, 214.

On the second ballot Smith was dropped. Breckinridge received 401, Scott 361 and Hays 328. Under the rule this left Breckinridge and Scott to be voted for on the third and final ballot. It took over an hour to complete it because of numerous changes after the first roll call. A recapitulation showed Breckinridge to have been nominated by the votes of 580 to 502.

The race for Auditor was a warm one, this being the most desirable office from a pecuniary point of view at the disposal of the convention. Gus Coulter, John B. Cheneau, R. Collier and June Gayle were the aspirants. A ballot was taken, but it showed such an advantage for Coulter that Cheneau was withdrawn and the nomination of Coulter was made unanimous.

Those presented for State Treasurer were Gus W. Richardson, of Meade; John C. Herndon, of Jefferson; Judge S. W. Hager, of Boyd; R. C. Ford, of Bell, and Jesse T. Gosnell, of Grayson.

The first ballot resulted: Hager, 366; Cossell 342, Ford 222, Richardson 158. Richardson was dropped on the next ballot, which resulted in the nomination of Hager by a vote of 584 to 505 for Cossell, Ford withdrawing before the ballot was completed.

C. Breckinridge, of Clay County, was nominated for Secretary of State on the first ballot, his opponents, John W. Headley, of Louisville; Thomas Cockran, of Bullitt, and Green Keller, of Carlisle County, withdrawing before the vote was announced.

The delegates were confronted by a new issue in the contest for Superintendent of Public Instruction in the person of Miss Mary Saaseen. They were too tired to be gallant, however, and her sponsors had some difficulty in getting a hearing. She received a small vote. Harry V. McChesney, of Livingston county, was nominated on the first ballot, M. A. Cassidy, of Lexington, being his only other opponent.

I. B. Nall, of Louisville, was nominated for Commissioner of Agriculture on the first ballot, receiving 564 votes against 527 for Dr. J. M. Frazer.

The convention then adjourned sine die.

FREAK EGGS.

Kentucky Fowls Appear to Have Engaged in a Freak Producing Contest.

A few days since the Gleaner told of an egg (a hen's egg) brought to the office by Mr. Ed Oberdorf, remarkable in the fact that it had no yolk. Since that time Kentucky exchanges have racked their brain in the effort to out-Herod Herod or in brief, to find something even more remarkable than the Oberdorf egg. The following are two of the samples:

Mrs. Webster Porter, using some eggs for cooking purposes, found a perfect yolk and white, that also contained a small egg with perfect shell which was somewhat larger than a quail's egg, says the Clinton Democrat. On breaking the smaller egg it also was found to contain a perfect yolk and white.

Assessor J. H. Taylor, living near Lewisport, comes to the front with a freak egg, says the Hancock Clarion. One of his black Minorca hens a few days ago dropped an egg about which nothing unusual could be detected. On breaking it for domestic purposes it was found to be a perfect egg in every way with another perfectly developed egg on the inside or center. The shell to the inner egg was soft.—Henderson Gleaner.

SEASON OF 1899.

To Our Friends: Another season of seed time is fast approaching, and the wise and prudent farmer will again use the old and favorably known JONES' BRANDS or BONE and ANIMAL MATTER FERTILIZERS, that have for many years done their full duty when applied to both Spring and Fall crops. The use of commercial Fertilizers is almost universal, and the experience of many years has proven conclusively that ANIMAL MATTER FERTILIZERS are the most complete plant food known, and the fact of putting ACID PHOSPHATE ROCK in a bag and branding it "DIS SOLVED BONE" does not make it a good product. Honest strictly pure Animal Matter Fertilizers are the best good, because they are worth more than any other fertilizer, and this guarantee is good, based on their merits, and rests with great satisfaction to their most excellent reputation in all parts of Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky, where they are extensively used. We respectfully urge you to give the celebrated Jones Fertilizing Co.'s goods a trial at both Spring and Fall crops, and we know satisfactory results and future orders will certainly follow.

Bill's Number One

By Robert Halifax.

"BILL!" "Yes?" Bill jumped almost guiltily. He had gulped a pepper, stored away in his pocket, vegetables, water, and so far as the ring round his neck, snatched into the bedroom, and was lost in round-eyed contemplation of the five-wicks-old pink atom in there, when that queer sort of whisper came through the doorway.

"Bill!" She edged in farther. "Don't you love me? Ain't you got the sweetest boy ever a man longed for? Or are you going to think more of the child than me?"

"You'll wake him! What d'yer mean, gal?" gasped Bill, taking the cutty from his mouth.

"What do I mean? Ab! you know well enough. But we don't want no words about it. There's the boy—is he to go all his life with a number, like a convick? I don't think I'd pose you if he could be named and registered before another week—or didn't you?"

"'Yumme,'" said Bill, staring. "So he has. Blowed if I hadn't."

"Bill, you know'd forget your head, you would. But that don't matter; there's the child, and you know now." She folded her arms, and looked up at him. "I don't want no words, we've been so nice together; but I suppose I may speak in my own house. I only ask what's the dear mite's name to be?—his name, well! mean one thing or other for him through life."

"Him? Why, Bill, of course—Bill Simmons," said he—or rather, faltered it. "I'll settle that long ago—so's we wouldn't change the name on the barrows."

"Oh you did? Well, then, there never ain't no telling, is there?" and Mrs. Simmona tittered a little hysterically, as she stumbled behind the picture of Garibaldi. "There, I think it's his mother's place to settle that. So when you get the bill, you'll just sign this bit o' paper, and see it puts it down proper. Here it is—and in words, er—Ermyntruda Marmaduke."

"Ermy—" "What?" Bill awoke up, his eyes goggling. "That boy?"

"That boy. Why shouldn't he have a duke's name as well as anyone? You didn't care? I did. Me and Mrs. Pippleton found that out in the paper, and we ain't going back on it."

"Give it here!" said Bill, hunkily, making a snatch. "Bloody, it's a plant. You've left it till now so as—Mrs. Pippleton? Who's she? I'll break her blooming neck. I'll—"

"That's it! Send the baby into a fit, along of your beastly temper. I knew how it would be. As sure as you stand there now, that's the child's name, and so there."

"Ermyntruda Marmaduke," he spelled out, incredulously. "What, a kid that's going to sell carrots on the kerb along o' me! Oh, yes! al' we're springing up in the world. 'One penorth o' tunip-top,' Mister Ermyntruda Marmaduke, and no stalk!" Yess! I'll see about that! Bill was born, and he's got a stick!"

"So you say! Allow me to tell you, Mr. Simmons, that child's not going in the carrot line, nor any other; he's going in the civil service, or not at all, where they go up and take their money and walk out again; either that or a beerhouse, as now! And as for Mrs. Pippleton, the best friend the child's got, she's been seen standing in the market, words between them—he—he shan't have no name at all! And I'll let him know every day as his own blessed father sat down and conspirated to ruin him. Now!"

She swung out. Bill stood staring at the paper—a morsel torn from "The Daily Big Gullet." Ermyntruda Marmaduke—he had never even heard that word, thought of being called the nippier's name. Ermyntruda! Sels and gins! It was past bearing. He caught up his cap and went down the stairs—quickly enough to catch Mrs. Pippleton edging off. She had been listening, then. He clenched his fist as she snorted and clattered her fire-lions. "Now, for two brandy pines! I'd down her, if he'd been in plain sight. I know you would; but there's only one in the house, as it happens. Hark! who'll do the downing? Perhaps you'll get off my olelotho."

Bill strode down the street, his neck red and puffed, to the pub at the corner; Pippleton was calling for a pen-north of shag when he felt his ear pinched.

"What ho, Bill! What's yours?"

"You, I know all about that! I buy my own. Now, what's game this—you and your missus? D'yer know that there?—my kid's name. That's what you've hunged into her head between you; but you won't come off—see?"

"Ermyn—" Pippleton stared. "Not me. Take my word I ain't heard much about Ermyntruda. They've been and 'scotched it between 'em. Why, it's a gal's name, isn't it?"

"No, yer fool, it's a duke's name; and I'm to go to the registrar's and spilt that out. Me! Swap my bob, Pip, I don't want no row, but I've got to have it out with your missus or someone befo' I go to bed. I'll be all right; my Harriet's still dead backards; you know that, eh?"

"Don't you do no thinkin' o' the silly, mate. Wimmen are wimmen; don't forget it. You're that dry—half old six with a head on, Miss! Now look here, Bill; I've got no kids, so I ain't never had no bother; but they've got this idea into their heads. Well and good; you was a fool to kick. Go home with it, and if you want to know what we've heard tell on, and you won't have no other at no mortal price. Then, tomorrow dinner time, you and me—"

Bad management keeps more people in poor circumstances than any other cause. The better the cause must look sharp and plain so that when a favorable opportunity presents itself he is ready to take advantage of it. A little forethought will also save much expense and valuable time. A prudent and careful man will keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Compound Cholera and Dysentery Remedy. This shiftless fellow will wait until necessity compels it and then ruin his best horse for a doctor and have a big doctor bill to pay, besides one pays out 25 cents, the other is out a hundred dollars and then wonders why his neighbor is getting richer while he is getting poorer. Morganstown wants water-works and the question is being agitated with prospects of success.

The popular view of the relation of the blood to human character and conduct is marked in many a family expression. We speak of there being "bad blood" between parents at maturity, "blue-blood" as describing nobility, "black-blood" as describing a treacherous nature, and in many another phrase mark our belief that in the mental, moral and physical man, "the blood is the life." The one basis of a healthy, happy and useful life is pure blood. With the blood pure, disease has no permanent lodging place in the system. For this very reason the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery aids the body of disease which have their origin in impurity of the blood. It absolutely purifies the blood, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter, increasing the action of the kidneys, lungs, heart and brain, and thus aiding in the removal of all disease.

As Epistles.

The following is a good epistle story. An old Yorkshire farmer died. The funeral over, being a widow decided to have a tombstone that should do credit both to the deceased and herself. To the local stonemason she explained her wishes. "I don't want nothing out of the way, just a simple and simple, like this." William Wilson, died October the fourth, 1866. Age, eighty-five. FURIOUS FLAMES.

Caused by a Gasoline Brazer's Burner Blowing Off.

E. M. Rich & Co., E. B. Clark & Co., and D. J. Hooser Sustained Heavy Losses.

The alarm of fire that startled those within sound of the court house bell about four o'clock Wednesday afternoon was caused by the discovery of flames in the rear room of the building at 104 South Main street, occupied by E. M. Rich & Co., dealers in bicycles. The immediate cause of the fire was the blowing off of a burner of a gasoline brazer, which was burning at the time. The floor of the room was at once flooded with burning gasoline, creating immense volumes of both fire and smoke.

A prompt response from the fire department was all that saved that and adjoining buildings. But the flames were only extinguished after great damage had been done.

The building occupied by Rich & Co., and the one adjoining to the north occupied by E. B. Clark & Co., grocers, on the ground floor, were both owned by E. J. Hooser, whose losses are covered by insurance. Although Rich & Co., saved most of the wheels in their house, their loss in tools, etc., will amount to several hundred dollars. Only a few days ago the firm let their insurance run out.

The loss falls heavily on the grocery firm of E. B. Clark & Co., who have closed their doors to the public pending the adjustment of their loss by the insurance companies. Mr. Clark states that their loss is fully four thousand dollars, as great lots of valuable goods stored in their rear rooms are entirely destroyed by either fire or water. The firm's loss, however, is fully covered by insurance.

Charles Lewis, a tinner, occupied a portion of Rich & Co.'s store, but reports little loss.

Fine Carriages & Traps

Every thoughtful owner of stock has a large lump of RETSOFF ROCK SALT in his manger, horse lot and pasture. This enables his stock to get salt all the time without getting too much, which sometimes proves fatal. We have just received a car load of it. It's the only pure salt obtainable. It will last a long time in the weather.

Another Car of Stock Peas

just received. Clover has been so uncertain for several years our farmers are planting peas as a substitute. They are fine for feed and fertilizer.

We have a very full stock of FERTILIZER FOR TOBACCO also, and can supply you right out of our warehouses.
